Senate Committeemen Enlightened About Railroads.

Chauncey Not in Payor of the Extension of Canadian Lines.

He Describes the Dangerous Power Possessed by the Grand Trunk.

Senator Cullom's Investigating Committee from Washington, which is trying to find out whether or not the Interstate Commerce law is operating to the detriment of American railreads in competition with the Canadian lines, began its second day's session in Parlor D. R. at the Fifth Avenue Hotel this morning. Senator Reagan, the Texas war veteran, was the first on hand, and the other members present were Senators Hiscock, of New York; Harris, of Tennessee; Gorman, of Maryland; Blair, of New Hampshire, and Platt, of Connecticut. Dr. Chauncey M. Depew, the President of the New York Central, was the first witness examined this morning. There was an exchange of courtesies when the Doctor came in about 10.15, and after he had taken the chair at the ad of the table, Senator Cullom began to fire Mr. Depew first explained how the New York Central and its two Western connections—the rate and distinct roads, though having close business relations, and all the business of the New York Central between New York and Chi-cago was done over these two roads.

Mr. Depew also said that the Canadian Grand

Trank used the West Shore, Lackawanna and Erie roads as its connections with New York City. These relations existed without any grea great friction or difficulty, as the Grand Trunk had no legal control over any of those roads. It was simply a business arrangement.

Do you favor the extension of Canadian roads into the territory of the United States?

"No. I cannot say that I do; but I was never in favor of cutting the Canadian roads out altogether."

gether."
What is your opinion as to the effect of the competition of these Canadian roads on Americompatition of these Canadian roads on American lines?"

"Practically the Grand Trunk is in a position to dictate to the American roads without injuring itself. It the case of the latter roads under the long and short haul clause of the Interstate law the Chicago rate controls our whole local traffic. The Canadian roads not being subject to this law can make any rate they choose for through business and then have the whole territory of Canada in which to recoup any loss that may be sustained on through business by the local traffic.

"The Canadian roads have also another great advantage over the American lines," continued Mr. Denow, "on their through export business, because here again they can make any rate they choose on through freight from the West in order to get the business and make up losses as before, while the American shippers are dependent upon the ocean carrying rates from day to day.

pendent upon the ocean carrying rates from day to day.

"The Canadian roads," he explained, "under the existing conditions, could compel the American roads to give them any percentage they thought they ought to have, and if they did not get their own terms they had it in their power to damoranize the American lines completely. This they could do by billing and rebilling in Canada.

This they could do by billing and rebilling in Canada.

"I think, however," he added, "that the managers of the Grand Trunk have tried to live up to the law where they have made concessions, these concessions being a differential on certain classes of through business."

"What is your view of the question of differentials 7 asked Senator Blair.

"I think that all railroad men of the present day believe that differentials are absolutely necessary. Hailroad business is different from any other business. Competition cannot wipe out a rival in it. It's simply a change of management. The only way the public can get good accommodations and reasonable and stable rates is to grant such a differential as will enable weaker roads to earn sufficient to exist."

"I think the Interestate law ought to have permitted the establishment of pools. It is the only way to establish better and fairer rates. There is a popular impression that roads will take advantage of such a power to advance rates by combination. But this is erroneous. It would be impossible to make a monopoly out of it. The whole tendency is towards lower rates. Nothing can resist it."

The Government should have the bower to forbid the building of a road that was not necessary.

Joseph Hickson, of Montreal, the General

Joseph Hickson, of Montreal, the General Manager of the Grand Tronk Line of Canada, was on the witness-stand during the afternoon.

Walt McDougall, "The World's" Car- Indorsement of His Warning About Polititoonist, Will Act as Judge.

A Gold Double Eagle for the Best Illustrated Joke or Funny Cartoon Submitted.

The next contest in THE EVENING WORLD'S POL ular series should be even more amusing than any of the predecessors.

The usual prize—a double gold eagle—is hereby offered for the best original illustrated joke. Watt McDougatt, THE WORLD's cartoonist, wil be the judge,

The illustrated jokes may touch on any topic The line between a funny cartoon and an illustrated foke is sometimes so indistinct that both will be admitted in the competition. The judge in making his decision will consider all points, the humor of the text and of the picture, and also the execution of the latter.

All drawings must be in outline with pen and ink, and about four taches equare. All competitors in this contest must address heir communications to Editor Illustrated Joke Contest, THE EVENING WORLD, New York.

BRIGHTER FOR MEYER

He Receives a Number of Offers of Employment.

John Meyer has battled bravely through the rough breakers of adversity and to-day there ems to be a chance of his ship sailing on the smoother waters of comparative prosperity. A month ago he was a gloomy prisoner in the Auburn Prison, with the knowledge that he had spent three years of the best portion of his life locked up for a crime that he had never com-

A feeble hope that when he got out he might be able to vindicate his name was all that bore him up under the terrible ordeal.

When he did get out he had no idea how he was going to attain his desires. Fortunately, in a small hotel in Albany he met man who advised him to go to THE EVENING

A shoe firm wanted to put him on the road selling their wares.

His friends do not believe he would succeed at that or at another job proffered by a life insurance company to go about soliciting orders.

The ubiquitous dime museum man has also been around—two of them. Both were willing to pay Meyer a good salary for appearing at their places, but he very properly refused to make a show of himself.

At another place a factory in Brooklyn, the proprietor treated Meyer very kindly, but could not afford to pay him more than $4.50 a week.

John Martin, foreman for Goulard & Rouse, provision dealers and pork packers at 514 Washington street, came to The Evening World office at noentime to-day and engaged Meyer at a salary of $12 a week to begin with.

Meyer is an educated German, and speaks English very fluently, and all he was desirous of obtaining was some active outdoor work at a salary upon which he could live.

He has been a bookkeeper for his father in Germany, but in this country he has done a sittle of everything. Mr. Froehlich says that Meyer is a first-class coachman and a good manager of a gentleman's estate.

Joseph Hartman, foreman in Nacthing's bake shop, at $300 Canal street, wrote a postal card to Trie Evening Wasting that he desired to see a reporter in reference to Meyer's case.

When seen he said that he had been foreman in the bakeshop at 118 Fulton street, where Charles Hoffman was employed May 1, 1886, and where he robbed two fellow employees of two silver watches and some clothing, for which he was sent to Sing Sing for three years on May 13, 1886, lit was while doing his time for that crime that

It was while doing his time for that crime that Hoffman was met in Sing Sing by Meyer, who forced him to confess that he had committed the robbery for which Meyer was imprisoned.

ILLUSTRATED JOKE CONTEST. LABOR'S VIEW OF IT.

A Great Opportunity for the Funny Bishop Potter's Sermon Fell on Good Ground There.

cal Corruption.

Bishop Potter's bold Centennial sermon has attracted as much attention in organized labor circles as it has from other sources, and is variously commented on by the labor landers.

His arraignment of plutocracy and his denunciation of the methods of practical politicians were in line with the utterances of orthodox labor reformers, while to some parts of his sermon in St. Paul's it was said that labor men ook exception.

With a view to presenting every point of view of this new and important issue, an Evening Wonld reporter to-day sought expressions of opinion from several labor men well qualified to peak on the subject and whose views will un doubtedly be read with interest.

Edward King, a hard-working type-founder

Edward King, a hard-working type-founder and an ex-delegate to the Central Labor Union, gave his views as follows:

"On the bribery, vote-buying question I will say that the men who work most to build up the labor movement have always preached Bishop Potter's doctrine and denounced bribery in countless resolutions.

"The class of recole to whom the Bishop belongs have constantly replied that it is the workingmen who sell themselves for money. We have always claimed that the active laboring men, devoting themselves to social and labor agitation, have resisted these temptations and stood out against the ridcule of the pulpit and press in emphasizing high moral principles as the only safety of this Republic.

The workingmen whom I talk with have been astonished as the Bishop's courage, but he has astonished us before. What we desire to be sure of is: Does he really mean it? We are justly suspicious of standing professions of social and political surity from prominent beneficiaries of legal and traditional corruption, not only of Gospel truth but of common decency.

I hope the Bishop will stand true to his colors when something honest needs to be done.

"Washington's personal character was certainly above the political level not only of our own times but of his own times. His inflexible devotion to what he conceived to be National policy led him to most outrageous neglect of Thomas Faine, whose life was in danger during the Reign of Terror and who appealed to him in vain.

"It seems to me that so deep is the evil of Thomas Faine, whose life was in danger during the Reign of Terror and who appealed to him in vain.

"It seems to me that so deep is the svil of financial and other corrupt influences on the honest registration of a man's real convictions at the polls that I believe no new or reformed political party could be free from not only the suspicion but the fact of like evil.

"I believe that it is possible to reproduce both 'the temper and the conduct of the forefathers,' but not as a tail to the kite of Republican, Democratic or Mugwimp political fakirs. There are honest American and foreigners in each of these political growns, and when they openly and sincerely unite as citizens, apart from political side-shows, to re-read American history and to conduct a propaganda among the mass of the people, inspiring honor and reverence for the remarkable examples of particle simplicity, vigorous and healthy scholarship, and lofty moral character which characterize the American Revolutionists above all revolutionists of any other country, only then will there be any hope of practical results from such spaemodic but apparently courageous and sincere utterances as those of the Bishop.

"In my own obscure and humble way I have constantly of late years adopted this method in schocational work among my fellow-workmen, and have sought successfully to find a basis and instituation for labor's policy in real living forces and examples of the Revolutionary times. This, I insist, no doubt to the great disgust of the Bishop seems to believe must some day cope with the powers of evil. Workingmen would like to have the Bishop with them. If not, they must go it alone."

A little child, tired of play, had pillowed his head on a railroad track and fallen asleep. The train was almost upon him when a passing stranger rushed forward and saved him from a horrible death. Perhaps you are asleep on the track, too. You are, if you are neglecting the hacking cough, the hectic flush, the loss of appetite, growing weakness and lessitude, which have unconsciously crept upon you. Wake up, or the train will be upon you consumption, which thus insiduously fratens its hold upon its victims while they are unconscious of its approach, must be taken in time, if it is to be overcome. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has cured thousands of cases of this meas-fatal of maladies. If taken in time, and given a fair trial, it is guaranteed to benefit or cure in every case of Consumption, or money paid for it will be promptly refusided.

For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Asthma, Severe Coughs, and kindred affections, it is an efficient remedy.
